Executive Summary

The Risk-Based Performance Management Program is designed to help organizations integrate risk management into strategic planning and performance measurement systems. The program introduces internationally recognized frameworks such as Enterprise Risk Management promoted by the Committee of Sponsoring Organizations of the Treadway Commission and global risk management standards developed by the International Organization for Standardization. Participants will learn how to identify strategic risks, link risk indicators with key performance indicators, and strengthen decision-making processes. Through practical case studies and advanced analytics tools, the program demonstrates how organizations can proactively manage uncertainty while improving performance outcomes. By the end of the program, participants will be equipped to design integrated risk-based performance systems that enhance resilience, accountability, and sustainable growth.
